World-class collections to make their grand entrance at JGTD 2023

B2B buyers to discover one-stop sourcing opportunity for finished jewellery, loose gemstones and jewellery technologies from 12 – 14 February at DWTC

DUBAI, 26 January 2023 – The stage is set for some of the best products that the jewellery world has to offer at Jewellery, Gem & Technology in Dubai \(JGTD\), the highly anticipated international B2B sourcing fair that is taking place from 12 to 14 February at the Dubai World Trade Centre (DWTC).

JGTD is returning for its second edition with about 350 major suppliers from 20+ countries and regions – with a 46% increase in net exhibition space from the 2022 inaugural fair, according to event organisers Informa Markets Jewellery and Italian Exhibition Group SpA (IEG).

Getting to see first-hand what is new and exciting before they even hit the stores is one of the reasons why buyers travel the world to attend JGTD. Here are some of the products debuting at the show this February.

Forty years ago, the founder of G. Arabov Diamonds Ltd – Gabriel Arabov – worked in a small factory and discovered his passion and affection for the world of rough diamonds. In the course of his vocation as a polisher, Arabov manufactured superior diamonds of all sizes and colours, including unique stones sourced straight from the mines of Africa.

Forty years later, Arabov is showcasing everything that his brand stands for – beauty, quality and rarity – at JGTD.

One of the largest diamond manufacturers in Israel, G. Arabov Diamonds is bringing one of the show’s finest selections of loose diamonds, including a 41.53-carat fancy light yellow, SI1 clarity, cushion-shaped gem; a 34.53-carat fancy intense yellow, cushion-shaped diamond, and a 3.01-carat, E colour, VS1 clarity, oval-shaped stone.

Messa Jewelry, G. Arabov’s finished jewellery brand, is likewise presenting showpieces such as its pear-shaped diamond ring with a double diamond halo and multi-row pavé diamond shoulders and classic ring with a fancy intense yellow, emerald-cut diamond centre gem with baguette side stones.

“We take care of our clients with credibility, care and honesty. We believe in our product, and more importantly, we believe in our customers. From past experience, our customers just keep coming back for more,” the company said. “We manufacture only diamonds that we believe in and we oversee the entire process. Each diamond gets treated as if it were the customer itself.”

With a proven track record spanning more than 40 years, Noor Gems Japan Co Ltd has carved out its own niche as a supplier of the finest and rarest Paraiba tourmalines, Kashmir sapphires, alexandrites, rubies, emeralds and more.

For JGTD, the coloured gemstone specialist has assembled an exceptional collection featuring a ring set with a 17.44-carat “vibrant” pinkish-red spinel centre gem and a rare 61.80-carat modified brilliant-cut Paraiba tourmaline. Both stones come with an accompanying gemstone report.

“We have always believed in building a global brand when it comes to showcasing the finest and rarest gemstones, and in making people aware of such exquisite alternative investments,” the Tokyo-based company said. “Dubai, one of the world’s leading travel destinations and home to some of the finest collectors, gives us the perfect platform to showcase these rare stones at a much larger scale.”

Alahmar Co Ltd

Also offering a glimpse of what’s hitting the show before it starts is Alahmar Co Ltd, a second-generation family-run atelier based in Bangkok. The company is unveiling stylish yet classic pieces set with diamonds, emeralds, rubies and other fine gemstones that are perfect either on their own or paired with other accessories for an elegant composition.

Alahmar operates as an in-house OEM and ODM, an integrated private-label B2B manufacturing house that incorporates designing, prototyping, material sourcing and crafting, finishing and distribution of tailor-made fine jewellery for international retail projects and jewellery brands.
